

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

A projection display system having a projector and a screen. The screen displays an image formed by light projected from the projector and processes user control signals input by a user to transmit the user control signals to the projector. The projector projects light to the screen to form an image thereon according to the user control signals output from the screen.